OR2011-12915

Dear Ms. Burton:

You ask whether certain information is subject to required public disclosure under the Public Information Act (the "Act"), chapter 552 of the Government Code. Your request was assigned ID# 429122 (DSHS File No. 19138/2011).

The Texas Department of State Health Services (the "department") received a request for details related to enforcement actions for a specified license number. You state the department has released or will release some of the requested information. You claim portions of the submitted information are excepted from disclosure under section 552.101 of the Government Code. We have considered the exception you claim and reviewed the submitted information.

Section 552.101 of the Government Code excepts from public disclosure "information considered to be confidential by law, either constitutional, statutory, or by judicial decision." Gov't Code § 552.101. Section 552.101 encompasses information protected by other statutes, including the Medical Practice Act (the "MPA"), subtitle B of title 3 of the Occupations Code. Occ. Code §§ 151.001-165.160. Section 159.002 of the MPA provides in part the following:

- (a) A communication between a physician and a patient, relative to or in connection with any professional services as a physician to the patient, is confidential and privileged and may not be disclosed except as provided by this chapter.

(b) A record of the identity, diagnosis, evaluation, or treatment of a patient by a physician that is created or maintained by a physician is confidential and privileged and may not be disclosed except as provided by this chapter.

(c) A person who receives information from a confidential communication or record as described by this chapter, other than a person listed in Section 159.004 who is acting on the patient's behalf, may not disclose the information except to the extent that disclosure is consistent with the authorized purposes for which the information was first obtained.

Id. § 159.002(a)-(c). This office has concluded the protection afforded by section 159.002 extends only to records created by either a physician or someone under the supervision of a physician. See Open Records Decision Nos. 487 (1987), 370 (1983), 343 (1982). Information taken directly from medical records and contained in other documents can be withheld in accordance with the MPA. See Occ. Code §§ 159.002, .004; Open Records Decision No. 598 (1991). Upon review, we find you have failed to demonstrate how any of the information at issue constitutes, or was taken directly from, a medical record. Accordingly, none of the submitted information may be withheld under section 552.101 of the Government Code in conjunction with the MPA.

You also assert the information at issue is confidential under both common-law and constitutional privacy. Section 552.101 also encompasses the doctrines of common-law and constitutional privacy. Common-law privacy protects information if it (1) contains highly intimate or embarrassing facts, the publication of which would be highly objectionable to a reasonable person, and (2) is not of legitimate concern to the public. Indus. Found. v. Tex. Indus. Accident Bd., 540 S.W.2d 668, 685 (Tex. 1976). To demonstrate the applicability of common-law privacy, both prongs of this test must be established. Id. at 681-82. This office has found some kinds of medical information or information indicating disabilities or specific illnesses are generally highly intimate or embarrassing. See Open Records Decision No. 455 (1987) (prescription drugs, illnesses, operations, and physical handicaps). Although the information at issue contains individuals' medical information that may be considered highly intimate or embarrassing, none of the information identifies the individuals. Therefore, any privacy interest those individuals may have in their medical information has already been protected. Consequently, the department may not withhold any of the information at issue under section 552.101 of the Government Code in conjunction with common-law privacy.

Constitutional privacy consists of two interrelated types of privacy: (1) the right to make certain kinds of decisions independently and (2) an individual's interest in avoiding disclosure of personal matters. Open Records Decision No. 455 at 4 (1987). The first type protects an individual's autonomy within "zones of privacy," which include matters related to marriage, procreation, contraception, family relationships, and child rearing and education. Id. The second type of constitutional privacy requires a balancing between the individual's privacy interests and the public's need to know information of public concern. Id. The scope of information protected is narrower than under the common-law doctrine of privacy; the information must concern the "most intimate aspects of human affairs." Id. at 5 (citing Ramie v. City of Hedwig Village, Texas, 765 F.2d 490 (5th Cir. 1985)). Upon review, we find you have not demonstrated how any portion of the information at issue falls within the zones of privacy. Furthermore, as previously noted, the individuals whose information you seek to withhold are not identified in the information. Thus, we find you have not demonstrated how any portion of the information at issue implicates an individual's privacy interests for purposes of constitutional privacy. Consequently, the department may not withhold any of the information at issue under section 552.101 of the Government Code in conjunction with constitutional privacy. As no further exceptions to disclosure are raised, the submitted information must be released.

This letter ruling is limited to the particular information at issue in this request and limited to the facts as presented to us; therefore, this ruling must not be relied upon as a previous determination regarding any other information or any other circumstances.

This ruling triggers important deadlines regarding the rights and responsibilities of the governmental body and of the requestor.
